

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1	General introduction	7
Part 1	Socioeconomic status in relation to birth outcomes	17
2	Smoking overrules many other risk factors for small for gestational age birth in less educated mothers	19
3	Educational inequalities in perinatal outcomes; the mediating effect of smoking and environmental tobacco exposure	31
4	Sub-optimal maternal vitamin D status and low education level as determinants of small for gestational age birth weight	43
Part 2	Socioeconomic status in relation to early growth and childhood body composition	55
5	Low maternal education is associated with increased growth velocity in the first year of life and in early childhood	57
6	Socioeconomic status, adiposity, and cardiometabolic risk factors at preschool age. A systematic review.	69
7	Socioeconomic inequalities in body composition at age 5-6 explained by pre- and postnatal factors.	87
8	BMI may underestimate the socioeconomic gradient in true obesity	101
9	Is maternal educational level associated with carbohydrate and fibre intake in 5-6-year-old children?	109
Part 3	Socioeconomic status in relation to cardiometabolic risk	119
10	Socioeconomic inequalities in lipid and glucose metabolism in early childhood	121
11	Explaining socioeconomic inequalities in childhood blood pressure and prehypertension	135
12	General discussion	153
	Reference list	171
	List of abbreviations	191
	Dankwoord	195
	Curriculum vitae	201